Indigenous Parent Factor
(Refresher program)

Presented by:
Australian Parents Council's Indigenous Parent Factor

The IPF is unique in that it reaches out to Indigenous parents with the aim to positively influence home learning and consequently improve Indigenous children's chances of a successful start to the early years of schooling.

It is based on key principles, including:

- Parents are the first and continuing educators of their children;
- The first few years of a child's development are crucial in setting the foundation for lifelong learning; and
- All young Indigenous people have the capacity to learn.
