Future Footprints

2017 has come to a close and what a year its been! We continue to enjoy our work supporting schools, students and families which is showcased in this newsletter.

Its been amazing supporting students on overseas trips, seeing them winning academic awards and being elected boarding house captains. Also terrific to watch as they excel on the sporting field.

Highlight of the year is congratulating a record sixty five graduating students in Year 12, after many years of study. It was a also a privilege to have Ken Wyatt MP attend this years Dinner, who was very impressed. He congratulated the graduating class of 2017 on their education journey. Lisa and Roni also are extremely proud of the work we do in assisting students in making great choices leading to productive and fulfilling life decisions before, during and after graduation. We will continue to support students post secondary and into employment and or further education.

Our first Future Footprints event in 2018 will be the Welcome to Country which is held in Kings Park on February 11 from 10am. All families are invited to attend.

Finally Lisa and Roni want to congratulate all the students and families on your commitment and effort in 2017 and to wish you a safe and enjoyable break. See you all in 2018.

Presbyterian Ladies College get creative!

Another incredible celebration of culture was held recently at the Fremantle Arts Centre. Wardanji continues to grow. It is an amazing opportunity for our schools and students to be involved in the sharing of our cultures. The students from Presbyterian Ladies College assisted Roni Forrest in creating a huge sand mural which was the base for the corroboree area. The girls story was of one of sharing cultures and of women and men coming together and gathering as one people.

The Gorna Liyarn students who participated on the day and later danced were Monique Smith, Zalailah Sampi, Tianna Bin Jacob, Asharnti Hicks, Shawana Ross, Jenny Carter, Cheyanne Prestedge and Sophia Short. They come from the Kimberley, the Pilbara, the Goldfields and from Noongar country.

The students were invited to also dance at the Corroboree and performed alongside seasoned dancers such as Wadumbah and Wesley College's Moorditj Mob.

Ammbi has also been selected to undertake study in the Pre Social Work Program at UNSW Nura Gili in Sydney for 4 weeks commencing in November, and has received an early offer into the Indigenous pre-medicine and Health Sciences program at Curtin University.

MEET THE SCHOOL COORDINATORS

Michael Ralph Christ Church Grammar School

Michael grew up in Waroona and Pinjarra in the South West of WA.

He commenced the role of Indigenous co coordinator in 2016, alongside his role as the school psychologist which he has been doing for the last 6 years at Christ Church Grammar School.

In his spare time Michael likes to surf and play AFL football and Cricket.

The Christ Church Grammar School's Indigenous program has produced many positive outcomes for boys. It is a small group that provides high levels of support and guidance for all the students and their families. The School's aim is to encourage the boys to be the best they can be academically, socially, emotionally and in the sporting field.

Meet the School Coordinators

Andrew Beck Guildford Grammar School

Andrew is a Ngadju Mirning Man who grew up mainly in the beautiful town of Esperance in the South West of Western Australia. He has been the Indigenous Program Coordinator for Guildford Grammar School for 6 years and previous to his role at GGS he worked at Madalah and Future Footprints. A big passion of his is to share his culture with mainstream Australia so they can see the beauty of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Cultures. Andrew uses music and dance to help show case his Culture and help bring power to the younger generation. Andrew says, "In everything I do, I remember that I am putting wood on the fire that my old people lit many years ago and for me to honour what they did is to keep the fire burning".

Andrew is pictured above with his family during NAIDOC Celebrations in Esperance where we constructed a huge puppet of the Waalitj and told the story of the Mandaboornap (story of Frenchmans peak)

Carly Aitchison St Brigid's College

Meet the School Coordinators

Michael Bell Aquinas College

Michael is the Director of Indigenous Education at Aquinas College where he has worked for the past 27 years. Previously he has held positions as Head of Year 8 and 12, Head of Edmund House, Head of Society and Environment, Dean of Curriculum, Director of Indigenous Education. He has been in his current role for 5 years. He is passionate about boys' education, basketball, football, fishing and his family.

Michael believes of all the roles that he has undertaken whilst at Aquinas his current role working with Indigenous students and families is potentially his favourite. He attributes this feeling to the relationships that extend far beyond the school boundaries that he is able to forge as a result of his position. Michael sees education as the key to the future for the young Indigenous men under his guidance and is often heard when speaking to the boys saying 'Well here is the advice I would give to my own son....' It is this openness and insistence that all boys give of their best to all that they do that has seen the Aquinas College Indigenous program go from strength to strength.

....education is the key to the future for young Indigenous people.....

TRACEY WALKER Presbyterian Ladies College

Tracey Walker is the Indigenous Programme Coordinator at Presbyterian Ladies' College (PLC) where she has been working for the past six years.

Originally from Albany, Tracey says it was a fabulous place to grow up in. When she finished year 12 she headed to Perth to attend Mt Lawley Teachers College where she studied Primary Teaching, majoring in Aboriginal Education.

After completing practicums in the metropolitan area and Tardun Mission during the first two years and then was placed at St Mary's PS in Broome for her long-term practicum. This led to full-time employment there the following year.

Tracey lived in Broome for eleven years before moving to Perth with her two sons in 1994. Employed as a public servant at this time, most of her years were spent at Abstudy, where she was in charge of the Boarding portfolio right up until she commenced at PLC six years ago.

Tracey says she still loves to go back to the Kimberley every chance she gets, "never having managed to get that red dirt right out of my system. Albany pulls me back home during the summer months. I guess my idea of the perfect existence would probably be to live up north during autumn, winter and spring and then to spend the summer down south in Albany which has an equal but totally different beauty". Something to think about for the future because at the moment she is happy working at PLC with this group of strong and inspirational young women, twenty nine in all for 2018.

Tracey loves to read, go beach walking and catching up with family and friends, goes to the theatre every now and again and enjoys a good movie.

Comedy night with Mary G

Term 4 Student Gathering was a Comedy night hosted by Scotch College and co-sponsored by Madalah.

Everyone had tears rolling down their faces from the one and only Mary G, Queen of the Kimberley. In her indomitable style she convinced a few students to come on stage with her. She sang and danced the night away and was a great performer with a great message.

Future Footprints thanks Mary G and her team for her humour and support!

Student Council News

The Term 4 2017 student council meeting was the end of an era. Students and School Coordinators have decided to hold more social gatherings rather than the formal Student Council meetings.

The Term 4 2017 student council was hosted by St Catherine's College, commonly referred to as "St Cats". This was a great evening with the students being able to "speed date" the Dandjoo Darbalung students who live at St Cats.

The students had 3 minutes to ask any questions of the Dandjoo Darbalung students, where they came from, how they survived high school, how they survived home sickness, why they choose the course they did. The feedback from our student were they really enjoyed that the Dandjoo Darbalung students shared their personal experiences. Student then went on a tour of St Cats, and even went down the slide that takes you from the first floor to the ground floor!. One student was so impressed and motivated by the Dandjoo Darbalung students that he now wants to attend university to become a Youth Worker.

Our student councillors included, Guildford Grammar School 2006 Graduate Luke Reidy who recently completed the New York Marathon, PLC 2008 Graduate Janni Thomas is now a Mechanical Fitter and Iona Presentation College 2008 Graduate Abby-Rose Cox.

The student council was formed in 2006 was to encourage students to explore and discuss different career and tertiary pathways, give students a leadership opportunity as well as to be proactive in guiding Future Footprints staff in identifying areas where students require support (from the students' perspective). Since this time student numbers have increased, schools have employed Indigenous Co-ordinators and the Future Footprints Career Expo has expanded, thus changing the role and need of the student council. Students now have leadership opportunities in their schools and students are also receiving an increased support from the schools. So therefore the student council has been changed to allow for more opportunities for peer support networks to be increased.

Where are they now?

One of the many outcomes of the Future Footprints program has been the development of family structures within schools. The program understood many years ago that developing great relationships based on Aboriginal families was the key to allaying homesickness and alienation sometimes felt at boarding school. It is wonderful to see these relationships kept strong by supporters such as St Catherine's residential college. Students who are resident here have already developed family relationships at secondary school, therefore the transition to future study/work is made easier by knowing all other the other residents. Pictured above are graduates of Future Footprints program which supported them through secondary schooling.

- Aquinas College graduate 2016 Jai Reidy is studying Batchelor of Science UWA
